1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: In regard to the Kawashima et al. reference (the X reference on the IDS submitted 4/14/2005), note that the claims call for a primary valve to bypass a portion of the regular oil flow to 64 in order to provide low pressure oil at 22 as shown in figure 1. The secondary valve closes the bypass line and the primary valve so that all of the oil flows to 22 as a high pressure flow at 22 as shown in figure 2. This is the structure clearly called for in all of the claims. For example, claim 1, part a) defines a primary valve with a bypass flow that allows low pressure in a gallery. Claim 1, part b) defines a second valve that shuts the bypass flow on or off so as to control the opening of the primary valve to allow high pressure flow at the gallery 22 as shown in figure 2. As seen in figure 6 of Kawashima, Kawashima has a bypass flow through conduit 107 to provide low pressure flow. There is no valve in conduit 107 to control the bypass flow as called for in the claims. The second valve 111 controls the flow through a second pilot channel 102 that leads to 110 at the top of piston 99 to open or close the primary valve 105 which either opens to allow a high pressure and full flow to 97 or is closed to prevent any flow through 105 to 97 so that only the by pass flow from 107 reaches 97 as a low pressure flow. However, the bypass line 107 is always opened and is not closed by the second valve as called for in the claims, and the second valve 111 only controls a pilot flow to the top of a control piston and does not control a bypass flow that provides low pressure oil to a gallery as claimed. Note that the claims clearly state that the primary valve is open to provide low pressure flow to the gallery. This is the exact opposite of Kawashima which opens the primary valve 105 for high pressure flow (not low) and the primary valve 105 is closed for the low pressure flow.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
